

May Is Disability Insurance Awareness Month

Have you safeguarded your future?

“Without our coverage with The Standard we are convinced we would have lost our business and most likely would have had to file for bankruptcy.”

Small business owner who suffered a back injury that limited his ability to run his business.

Think about it: All your plans for the future — from buying a home, to putting your kids through college, to building a retirement nest egg — are based on the assumption you’ll continue to earn a paycheck until you retire. But what happens if those paychecks suddenly stop? That’s where The Standard[‡] can help. Income protection insurance from The Standard protects you by providing monthly income to you and your family if you are unable to work because of illness or injury.

Could it happen to me?

- Just over one in four of today’s 20 year-olds will become disabled before they retire.¹
- Every seven seconds, someone in the United States suffers an illness, injury or accident that will keep them out of work for more than one month.²

What kind of protection can I expect?

When you have income protection insurance with The Standard, you receive a monthly benefit that is based on your salary and bonus income. Should you change jobs, your disability insurance coverage remains intact — even if your duties change or you lose your job — as long as you continue with your scheduled premium payments.

Who can I trust?

Whether the market is up or down, since 1906 The Standard has been there to protect its customers and their families. This dedication has resulted in a national reputation for quality products, superior service and industry expertise.
